

Drama scenarios

One person is telling a story about something that happened to them. It's a slightly embarrassing story but the person is enjoying telling it and laughing along with their friends.	A group of people are chatting and someone comes towards them. They aren't watching where they are going and bump into something/trip over. The group finds this very funny and laughs.
A group of people are chatting and someone comes towards them. They have just come from the toilets and have toilet paper stuck to their shoe. The group notices. They start nudging each other, pointing and laughing.	A group of people are hanging out together, watching a video on a phone. It's something really funny and they are all laughing.
A group of people are spending time together and are telling their favourite jokes. Each one is funnier than the last one and everyone keeps laughing.	A group has been chasing smaller kids in the playground. They are talking to each other about how funny it was when the little children looked so scared and laughing about it.
One person is telling an embarrassing story about a friend. The friend is looking uncomfortable but the story is very funny and everyone else is laughing.	A group are playing outside, spinning around in circles until they fall over and pulling their best funny faces at each other. It's so hilarious that they can't stop laughing.